

ECOLOGY.DESIGN.SYNERGY

Behnisch Architekten + Transsolar ClimateEngineering

Behnisch Architekten and Transsolar have established and maintained a long-term working relationship completing numerous international projects. The common foundation of this collaboration is the belief that high-quality built environments can be realized with less consumption of natural resources.

The joint exhibition attempts to address the wide-spread and misleading quantitative interpretation of the term "sustainability" by highlighting its manifold aspects which constitute important qualities in themselves. The selected projects, among them the award-winning Genzyme Center, are presented in a manner which illustrates the working methods, the results of previous collaborations and prospects for the future.

The exhibition is curated by Frank Ockert, Stuttgart, in cooperation with Cisco Home, L.A. and ifa - Institute for Foreign Cultural Relations represented by the Goethe Institute.
